

PATROL STATIONS GO TO CITY HALL

Change Regarded by Department as Very Important Will Be Urged.

BOARD WILL MEET TO-NIGHT

Has Long Docket of Business From Common Council to Dispose Of.

One of the most important moves made in the police department for some time is that looking to transfer the patrol stations from the two districts to the City Hall, where they may be under the direct attention of the chief.

At the last meeting of the Grounds and Buildings Committee a resolution was passed recommending the appropriation of $500 for the purpose of transferring the two stations to the City Hall. The Police Board and the department endorse this resolution, and when the matter comes before the Board of Aldermen to-night there will be advocates present who will endeavor to show that body the importance of the change.

Within a short while the apparatus at the Sixth Street station will have to be taken from that place to the new station at Eighteenth and Broad Streets, and it is argued that in the removal the wires might just as well be placed in the City Hall as at the new station.

The committee has figured that it will cost only the sum mentioned to do all the work, and they contend that it will be better for the department to have the patrol system with close touch of the office of the chief.

The plan contemplated by the Grounds and Buildings Committee, or at least their recommendation, places the patrol system in the basement of the City Hall, directly under the office of the Chief of Police, in the room now held by the coroner.

In making this change the chief feels that it is for the good of the service, in that it puts more men in active service, by taking three from the patrol system, now engaged at the two stations. In the proposed new quarters three men only will be necessary to handle the apparatus. Now it takes six. By the transfer the outside service of the other three men will be gained.

There is some opposition on the part of occupants of the rooms in the basement of the City Hall, but it is claimed by the committee that this opposition may be met by placing those who object in other parts of the building. The coroner does not object, but the engineers do. There is room enough for all, it is held. The office of the chief is open all night. The new first station will be ready in a few weeks.

The Police Board will meet to-morrow evening, principal business will be the revision of the rules. The recent enlargement of the force necessitates the change in this respect, and in the revision there will be provision for the mounted officers. The latter are necessary because of the territory taken in by annexation, and it is proposed by the department to place ten or twelve men on horseback in the outlying district.

Another question that is agitating the officers of the force is that of the increase in salary. This matter will be taken up at the meeting of the Board of Aldermen to-night.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

Dr. Levy Preparing for Busy Year—Report Delayed

Dr. E. C. Levy and his office force are busily engaged in preparing the annual report of the Health Department, which embraces a vast array of statistical matter. The delay in the preparation of the report is due to the long illness of the clerk of the department and his failure since then to complete the work. The statistical matter will be much more complete and accurate in detail than ever before, and when this once done it will be a guide to future tabulated work.

Dr. Levy has accepted an invitation to address the Civic Betterment League, of Roanoke, on March 16th, on "The Warfare Against Disease." He will also deliver an address in Berkeley Heights on a subject to be determined later.

On April 24 the health officer will address the Jewish Women's Council on "Ancient and Modern Conceptions of Disease."

Dr. Levy is preparing for a busy year in his educational and other positions as traveling salesman for a St. Louis concern. His headquarters will be in St. Louis.

NORTHSIDE WILL BE INCORPORATED

Citizens of Chestnut Hill and Highland Park Meet and Take Action.

CHARTER SOON TO BE DRAWN

Enlarged School Facilities, Water Supply and Fire Protection Being Planned.

A representative meeting of the citizens of Chestnut Hill and Highland Park was held to-night for the consideration of the question of incorporation, which was decided finally in the affirmative, by a substantial majority of votes.

The gathering was in Northside Hall, invited guests having been extended to all property-holders on the hill, whether residents or living outside, and to all qualified voters in the district. It was proposed to incorporate, Chairman William H. Dunn called the meeting to order, and discussed the matter at length. He was seconded by Messrs. Geo. W. Babble, H. St. John Coalter, Alvin G. Quarles, John S. Lear and A. P. Mosby, a number of phases of the situation, both pro and con, being fully considered.

On a call for a question, the vote was taken on the proposition to incorporate the district, and resulted in a large majority's declaring for incorporation.

It was then ordered that a committee of eight, to be hereafter appointed by the chairman, draft a charter and report to the Northside Citizens' Association in a week or two. Chairman Dunn stated that he would reserve the appointment of this committee for a few days in order to secure the best available material for service.

Sentiment on the hill is said to be largely in favor of incorporating the district for local government and improvements. Enlarged school facilities, water and fire protection will be some of the matters taken up as soon as the articles of incorporation are approved.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) LYNCHBURG, Va., March 11.—Judge Barksdale dismissed the rule issued against County Treasurer John W. Only two witnesses, County Clerk George and Deputy Clerk "Coles," were examined, and Judge Barksdale announced that there was absolutely nothing before him to show that the officer should be relieved of his office. The rule was issued after a report made by grand jury at the February term of the court, and it has been the source of much interest and speculation since. The outcome is not a surprise.

STORMY SCENES MARK THE CLOSE

The North Carolina Legislature

Passes Anti-Trust Law and Adjourns.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 11.—The 1907 sessions of the North Carolina General Assembly, was formally adjourned this afternoon, and the members are leaving on every train for their homes.

It was 5 o'clock sharp when, with the Senators and Representatives standing at their desks in either hall, the doors swung open so that the presiding officers faced each other across the corridor. President Wilson pronounced the words declaring the Assembly adjourned, the gates respectively, in the hands of President Wilson and Speaker Justice falling simultaneously.

Stormy scenes had preceded the calm that prevailed at the hour of adjournment. There had come the final struggle between the Senate and that faction of the House which was bent on forcing the incorporation of the Justice amendment in the Senate's bill (McLean substitute) for control of the trusts.

Early in the day the Senate had stricken from the bill the amendment for which Speaker Justice had made his sensational fight in the House Saturday night, being almost exactly subsection "A" of the Reid bill, which the Senate had resisted persistently. The Senate had then sent the bill back to the House for concurrence, and on this Speaker Justice had taken the floor and denounced the Senate roundly for, as he charged, evading the issue and trying to drive the House from its position. He had declared that he preferred no anti-trust bill to the one the Senate insisted on passing. He had a supplemental bill, which, he said, if the Assembly would pass, he would support the Senate bill.

This gave the Attorney-General a part in prosecution of corporations violating the laws against unlawful combinations of capital and otherwise adjusting the machinery for enforcing the act.

Help Up Big Stick.

Then the anti-trust bill was passed as it came from the Senate, and the Justice supplemental bill was, in turn, passed after Speaker Justice had declared that this would force a railroad vote in the Senate on the real anti-trust issue, and he proposed to carry the roll-call into the next Democratic State convention.

The Senate anti-trust bill was ordered enrolled, and the Justice supplemental bill was sent to the Senate, where it raised a veritable storm of indignation.

Senator McLean took the floor and denounced the course of Speaker Justice bitterly, declaring him to attempt to rule out of the Democratic party at the next convention those Senators who had supported and passed his substitute. He belittled the capacity of the Speaker, declaring that he could not put a measure in proper language, and that a whole course seemed to center around the committee desire he had to become Attorney-General, all the bills he championed enlarging the power of this office.

Keen Remorsement.

Senator Fleming sent up a resolution to treat with silent contempt both the language and he bill of Speaker Justice. Senator Holt got the floor and read a retraction from Speaker Justice, which he had just made on the floor of the House, and was to the effect that he withdrew the language regarding the attitude of the Senate and the threat to carry the roll-call of the Senate into the Democratic State convention; that he had altered these words in the words of resolution, and desired to fully retract. This was all on the troubled waters. The "silent contempt" feature of the Fleming resolution was eliminated. However, the Justice supplemental bill went to the table by a large vote. This ended the trust legislation of the session, which had given rise to a succession of sensational during two weeks.

During the day there were happy scenes in both Houses, during which members of the two bodies were present. President Winston, in the Senate and Speaker Justice, together with appropriate tokens to other officers and clubs. There were ever and anon songs, in which the law-makers in the halls and ladies in the galleries joined merrily.

NEITHER WOULD ANSWER

Preacher and Editor Still Refuse to Give Committee Information.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) RALEIGH, N. C., March 11.—The special committee on investigation of the sensational charges by Editor R. W. Simpson, Jr., in the Evening Times, relative to the influence of Josephus Daniels with the Conference Committee on Railroad Passenger Rates in getting in the bill the "sixty-mile track" clause, made its report of the investigation to-day. Editor Simpson and Rev. Plato Durham had flatly refused to answer questions as to the source of their information on which the editorial and sermon were based. The committee's report would make the committee have no recommendation to make, and suggests that the refusal of Editor Simpson to answer the questions of the committee be left to whatever action may be taken by the courts hereafter. The report was adopted and the committee discharged.

Representative Winborne arose to state that he found Rev. Plato Durham had been reported correctly as to reflections on the conference committee, but he would refrain from any further personal privilege references to him, since he felt sure he was suffering from a case of hydrophobia from the bite of Editor Daniels. So he would leave him to his conscience and his God.
